

Hitler Attempts To Force Greeks To Seek Peace

Alternative of Invasion Faces Greece; Turks, Bulgarians Sign New Pact

Many Die in Raid

Germans Subject Anglo Capital to Three-Hour Raid

(By The Associated Press)

Balkan diplomatic quarters reported today that Adolf Hitler has brought pressure on Greece to make a quick peace with Italy—on Premier Mussolini's terms—under threat of having Nazi troops invade the Aegean kingdom.

Dispatches from Sofia, Bulgaria, said the German minister to Athens informed Greek leaders that, with the signing of the new Turkish-Bulgarian nonaggression pact, Greece is now open to attack through Bulgaria.

If Greece refused, it was said, Hitler's Balkan army, estimated at upwards of 600,000 men, would start rolling from bases in Rumania, across Bulgaria, into Eastern Thrace.

The authoritative Sofia newspaper Zora said Soviet Russia had agreed with Germany on the Bulgarian-Turkish pact as a means of preventing the spread of war in southeast Europe.

Nazi bombers inflicted an apparently heavy toll of casualties in overnight raids on the British Isles, subjecting London's millions to a three and one-half hour alarm and pounding the East Angles region in widespread attacks lasting until dawn.

Rescue parties worked for six hours bringing out the dead and survivors trapped when a heavy bomb smashed through the roof of a London shelter, choking the entrance with debris.

Hospitals and bath houses in the vicinity were crowded with injured, and many were feared killed.

"Two nurses at a first-aid post near the entrance were killed," an official said. "The blast doors had been blown into the shelters, killing many. All around, people were moaning and trying to move..."

1,502 Die in Raids

As the rescue work went on, it was officially announced that 1,502 civilians were killed and 2,012 wounded by air raids over Britain in January—compared with 3,793 killed and 5,044 injured in December.

The Germans reported Nazi raids on London, Southampton, Great Yarmouth, Sheerness, the Shetland Islands and Moray Firth, North Scotland.

Germany's reported "squeeze" on Greece to sue for peace on Italy's own terms came as the Greeks continued fresh advances north of Kilsura, in Central Albania, and declared that II Duce's Fascist legions were blowing up front-line Greek dispatches said Italian losses in dead and wounded were the heaviest since Italy invaded Greece on October 28.

The Italian high command acknowledged "considerable losses," but asserted that the Greeks had failed "in bitter fighting" to break the Fascist lines.

In London, the admiralty announced another week of comparatively low shipping losses, with a total of 13 ships aggregating 29,806 tons sunk during the week ended February 9—less than half the average weekly loss since the war began. It was the ninth consecutive week that losses had fallen under the 62,000-ton average for the war.

The admiralty noted that the Axis had claimed "over three times the true figure" for the week.

British officials minimized the significance of yesterday's Bulgarian-Turkish non-aggression pact, interpreted widely as the opening lever by Germany in an attempt to force Britain's ally, Greece, to sue for peace with Italy.

Plan Goes Aways

It was indicated in London that alleged German infiltration into Bulgaria had turned topsy-turvy what had begun as a British-blessed Turkish effort to stiffen Bulgarian resistance.

The accord expressly stated it did not alter either country's existing obligations. Britain officially took that view, and Greek spokesmen said they were "encouraged" by that stipulation.

But because of the pact's timing and its apparent reversal of the controlled Turkish press' hostile tone toward Bulgaria, many observers believed it was a tacit admission by Turkey that her troops would remain immobile unless German troops actually crossed her frontiers.

Axis sources joyfully hailed the pact as opening the way to an Axis-dominated peace in the Balkans, and observers believed

Electric Eye Range Finder Employed To Protect Anglia

British Also Are Choosing Night Pilots Who Can See in Dark as Part of New Scheme

London, Feb. 18 (AP)—A range finder with the speed of an electric eye is directing the fire of Britain's anti-aircraft guns in what has been described here as an entirely new type of coordinated air-ground warfare against night bombers.

Increasing experience of the gun crews and picked night fighter pilots in operating in the dark, plus a new night defense scheme and advantages gained by use of the faster range finder, were said to have enabled the British to knock out of the skies greater numbers of invading planes.

Although German air activity over Britain in January was on a comparatively small scale, British anti-aircraft gunners were credited with bagging 11 night raiders. Night fighter planes reported bringing down four, and three crashed for reasons not disclosed officially.

So far this month, seven have been destroyed—all but two by anti-aircraft fire.

Last November, a month of heavy air warfare, only 14 night raiders were shot down, although they came in hundreds. In December, only 10 were bagged at night. That month, too, the raiders were over England in large numbers, night after night.

Sources here estimated not more than 1,200 Nazi planes were over Britain at night during the whole month of January, whereas in November the total of night raiders was thought to have been 5,000.

On the basis of these figures, the January ratio of "kills" was approximately four times greater than during November.

Is Lightning Calculator

The new predictor (range finder) has been a hush-hush device, but this much has leaked through the official secrecy: It is a sort of lightning calculator which at least makes a stab at getting around the big difficulty in range finding—the ratio between the speed of attacking planes and the speed at which the sound of their motors travels.

The old predictors failed to work satisfactorily because by the time a plane flying at 15,000 feet was heard by mechanical ears it would be as much as three miles from where it was detected.

Coordination of defenses and increasing experience were said, however, to be even greater factors toward solving the night bomber problem than the use of the new range finder.

The new tactical system involves a combination of the use of searchlights, anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes equipped with two-way radios by which they can be guided by ground observers.

Cubes of Responsibility

For ground observation purposes, the sky is divided into cubes of responsibility, with each observer assigned to watch a specific cube.

When the action starts, guns and searchlights switch from one cube or group of cubes to another, letting night fighters take over, and vice versa.

Night fighters pilots—especially picked for ability to see in the dark—get special diets, including a heavy ration of carrots and cod-liver oil.

They also receive special training. (Continued on Page 12)

Japanese Would Act For Peace

Director of Information Cabinet Says Japan Is Not Seeking Peace for Self Alone

Sees War Futile

Japanese, He Says, Can See No Purpose in Prolonging War

Tokyo, Feb. 18 (AP)—A Japanese spokesman declared today that "warlike preparations of the British and American governments" in the Pacific had caused "anxiety if not misgivings" in Japan and said the situation would be "greatly mitigated" if the United States confined such alleged preparations to the western hemisphere.

The spokesman, Koh Ishii, director of the cabinet information bureau, declared in a prepared statement to the press that "we are utterly unable to see any good purpose served by prolonging war, whatever the motive may be."

"Japan is fully prepared," he said, "to act as mediator or take whatever action is calculated to recover normal conditions, not only in greater East Asia, but anywhere in the world."

Ishii said later this phrase was not to be interpreted as an offer of mediation, but an expression of willingness to accept any invitation to act in such a capacity.

Great Responsibility

He emphasized that "leading powers" in the world have a "great responsibility for restoring world peace and civilization" and declared "such a responsibility can only be fulfilled by wise and generous statesmanship which is willing to listen to others' claims and contentions."

Ishii reiterated statements that Japan's intentions are peaceful, that "so far as we can see there is no ground for entertaining alarming views of the East Asiatic situation."

The Japanese press declared today "four-power encirclement of our country is a plain fact." This referred to the position of the United States, Great Britain, Australia and the Netherlands government in exile in London.

Might Face Issue

Only yesterday, Vice Foreign Minister Chuichi Ohashi was quoted by Domei, Japanese news agency, as saying these four governments "seem intent on suppressing Japan," and that Japan might "be obliged to face the issue."

Last night, Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka told a committee of the House of Representatives "nothing can deflect" Japan from a policy of establishing "a mutual prosperity sphere." He urged national unity to prevent any belief abroad that Japan "is being rapidly exhausted or divided against herself regarding national policy—a belief which might suggest that a policy of firmness by the United States might induce Japan to relax her attitude to a certain extent."

Japanese newspapers said Britain had "deliberately fabricated a crisis in the Near East."

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—A threat of immediate strife over the Republican national chairmanship abated today after Wendell L. Willkie's prediction that Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts would retain the party post. Willkie, the 1940 Republican presidential nominee, conferred last night with Martin, who announced recently he would hand in his resignation at a national committee meeting March 24. Later Martin told reporters that Willkie had been "kind enough to urge me to stay on" and added that he had taken the suggestion under consideration.

Boltz Pleads Guilty

Philadelphia, Feb. 18 (AP)—Less than an hour after he surprised the prosecution by pleading innocent, Robert J. Boltz changed his mind today and pleaded guilty to 185 indictments charging embezzlement, fraudulent conversion and violation of the State Securities Act in connection with his $2,500,000 investment business.

The second plea was unexpected as the first act climaxed a swift-moving hearing.

African Army Gives No Sign of Campaign to Get Tripoli From Duce's Forces

London, Feb. 18 (AP)—Sharp blows by British air, sea and land forces against the Italian peninsula itself were viewed in some quarters today as a possible second phase of Britain's campaign in the Mediterranean.

With Italian invaders ousted from Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Kenya Colony and Egypt, and all operations in Africa now going in the hands of the Italians in their Libyan colony, General Sir Archibald P. Wavell has given no indication that his army intends to reduce

First Defense Act Passes in Albany Without Debate

Bill Legalizes State, Local Defense Units; Other Bill Would Outlaw Primary Rule

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—New York's legislature passed the first major state defense measure today with Senate approval of a bill to legalize state and local defense councils.

The vote was unanimous and brought no debate, after Republican Senate Majority Leader Joe R. Hanley asserted the proposal had been "thoroughly digested and agreed upon by all leaders."

Senate action on the proposal was hastened because of "the emergency," Hanley said. The Assembly approved the measure last night with objection only of an American Labor party member who asked further study of its constitutionality.

The Assembly, meantime, passed and sent to the Senate a bill which would eliminate primary elections in districts where there are no contests.

Approval of the two measures came as few bills, mostly non-controversial, trickled through a legislative "bottleneck" caused by Republican budget-cutting difficulties and party adoption of a "watchful waiting" policy on contested defense proposals.

Leaders believed any speedup of legislative action would await agreement on methods of reducing Governor Lehman's $385,000,000 budget and a crystallized sentiment on defense.

Republican majority and Democratic minority members termed the legalization of defense councils "harmless" and non-controversial.

Offers Bank Measures

Two proposals affording "greater protection" to banks against deposit losses resulting from the European war were introduced in the legislature today by Senator Pliny W. Williamson, Westchester Republican.

Williamson, who estimated deposits affected by the bills amount to "several hundred million dollars," said the measure would enable banks to require a court order or suitable indemnity bond before recognizing a claim to securities held for account of others.

He pointed out under the proposals "domestic banking institutions will be relieved of the necessity of deciding at their peril who properly represents a business concern in an invaded country."

The Senator said at present New York banks "must commence a legal action to decide immediately, at their own risk, whether the securities belong to the claimant or to the foreign bank which deposited them."

Meanwhile state lawmakers considered an economy-inspired proposal to eliminate special public elections for filling vacancies in the legislature.

The bill, sponsored by Republican Assemblyman Robert J. Crews, Brooklyn, would fill vacancies in either Senate or Assembly by a majority vote of members who belong to the same political party and House as the former occupant.

Introduction of the measure, reportedly aimed at expense of public balloting, coincided with three special elections to choose a senator and two assemblymen.

A bill to eliminate an existing provision of the unemployment insurance law which subjects benefits to claims of attorneys for services provided for their collection was introduced by Senator William F. Condon, Yonkers Republican.

Physician Testifies

Dr. Van Gaasbeek testified that the tests showed that the blood sample showed an alcoholic content of .27 of one per cent and the urine test .37 of one per cent of alcohol. He said that in his opinion a person whose blood test showed .15 of one per cent alcohol would be intoxicated and that a blood alcoholic content of .50 of one per cent would be fatal in most cases.

The doctor testified that as a result of his examination of the defendant, his appearance and actions on the night of his arrest, and from the evidence shown by the blood and urine tests, the defendant was "obviously drunk."

There were frequently lively interchanges between the district attorney and counsel for the defense during the day and numerous objections were raised.

Arthur H. Brown, who as assistant jailer, booked Clearwater at the county jail, also testified as to his condition when he arrived at the jail. Brown has since left the employ of the county and is now one of the guards at the Hercules Powder Co. plant.

Lease-Lend Agreement Brings Smiles

Senators Alben W. Barkley (D-Ky.) (left) and Warren R. Austin (R-Vt.) smile during their chat outside the senate chamber in Washington after making their speeches before the upper house favoring the administration's lease-lend bill. Barkley, opening debate on the measure, said that if England does not beat Hitler "we shall some day have to surrender to him or defeat him over here." At the climax of a heated exchange with Senator Bone (D-Wash.) Austin shouted, "if it ever becomes necessary for us to fight, we will fight."

Greenkill Avenue Resident Takes Stand After Other Testimony Is Recorded

The trial of Harry H. Clearwater of Greenkill avenue, charged with driving while intoxicated, as a second offender, continued all day Monday in county court before Judge Conway and a jury.

It was 12:30 when the jury retired to begin its deliberations today.

District Attorney Haver conducted the prosecution on behalf of the people, with Chris J. Flanagan appearing for Clearwater.

Chief of Police Charles Phinney, Lieut. Fred Stoudt, and Officers Earl Schoonmaker and Fred Fatum who were in charge of the patrol car the night of August 30 when the defendant was arrested by Officer Harnes, as he was driving through Henry street, testified for the prosecution.

Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeek, police surgeon, who examined Clearwater and who took blood and urine tests, and Dr. Lester D. Ellerbrook, chemist and toxicologist at the Kingston laboratory, who analyzed the samples taken, also testified for the people.

Phillips Says U. S. Needs to Use Men Of Modern Ideas

Artillery Officer Illustrates Contention With Great Need for Tanks as Attacking Vehicles

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—A field artillery staff officer declared today that the United States might have to pay in "needless dead and wounded" and "even lost wars" for failing to modernize its equipment and tactics in the post-World War years.

The artilleryman, Lt. Col. Thomas R. Phillips, urged in an article in "The Infantry Journal" that "conservatives" in the war department be replaced by men who comprehend the changes brought about by new weapons and altered social conditions.

To illustrate his contention, he declared that possibilities of the tank went generally unrecognized in the United States army until the outbreak of the present European struggle.

Ideal Weapon

"Here," said Col. Phillips, "is a weapon ideally suited to the greatest industrial nation on earth and to a soldier personnel, every one of whom is able to drive a car and has some elementary mechanical education."

"At the outbreak of the European war we had some 300 light tanks. We had no homogeneous armored divisions capable of independent action. . . . The reasons for the shortage of tanks are exclusively our own fault."

Col. Phillips formerly was an instructor at the command and general school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and now is attached to the general staff of the Puerto Rican department.

He contended that the U. S. army also had lagged in motorizing supply trains and in reorganizing its divisions to conform to the demands of modern war.

Lag Is Cited

"One would think," he continued, "that the United States, which can manufacture trucks faster than it can draft men, would have developed the tactics and equipped its army so as to make the greatest possible use of this exceptional military asset. But not so."

"It was not until 1939 that a divisional organization was adopted which discarded horses and mules for hauling supplies in wagons and dragging machine-gun carts and substituted motors for them."

Describing maneuvers in which he said troops had marched all night, "when the same troops in motor vehicles could have motored completely around the division being attacked three times in a single night," Col. Phillips declared:

"It is like a fantasy, the nostalgia of men who want to return to a never-never land."

'Guns' Idea Considered

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—A proposal to put the seized guns of New York's criminals into the hands of Great Britain's defenders won consideration today of the state Senate. During debate on a bill to give illegally-possessed weapons to the state police instead of destroying them as present law requires, Republican Senate Majority Leader Joe R. Hanley suggested "they should be sent overseas where they would do some good."

New Spring Styles Hold High Interest In Britain as New Models Are Unveiled

London, Feb. 18 (AP)—Britain's much-discussed new spring styles and colors, finally unveiled after weeks of dark secrecy, should help to get minds off the war this spring.

The styles and models—which designers with fingers crossed hope to get to North and South America early in the spring—feature colors of the sky, sea, lakes, streams and "gayer earth colors." There are no such creations as had figured in some speculations, such as blitzy black, R.A.F. blues and ration-card red.

Through many designs, oddity or perhaps not oddity, runs a subtle United States touch, with red, white and blue predominant.

Everything was a big secret yesterday. Last August, the government asked the British color council to act in a liaison capacity between couturiers and exporters. Then the trouble began and, as the council said, "probably no important collection of models ever has been produced under such strange circumstances."

Hartnell is featuring a tweed suit in cornflower blue. Worth offers a horticultural garden dress of dazzling pattern, and Molyneux has a rayon crepe evening dress in a red that makes the Red Hills of Georgia look pale.

Clark Says Legislation Would Strip Defense and Grant Autocratic Powers

Draws Comparison

Similar to French Debacle

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—Senator Clark (D., Mo.) expressed belief in the Senate today that enactment of the pending British aid bill would be "equivalent to a declaration of a state of war" which ultimately would have to be followed up by sending troops abroad.

"This is not a defense bill at all," Clark declared, holding the floor as the first opposition speaker in the Senate debate over the measure. "This is a war bill. This is a bill to implement and put in motion processes almost certain to result in war."

He contended that the measure amounted to "guaranteeing a military victory by one belligerent over another."

"We all know," he said, "that that is equivalent to a declaration of a state of war ourselves and must be followed up by sending our ships, our warships, our planes and our guns and ultimately our men. Once, committed we cannot turn aside."

Clark spoke after Senator Johnson (R., Calif.) asserted formally that the bill would make President Roosevelt "a dictator or worse."

Opening the second day of Senate debate, Clark declared that the measure would "strip" American defense, grant "autocratic powers" to the President and reverse traditional American foreign policy.

In a lengthy minority report, Johnson, ranking Republican member of the foreign relations committee reviewed the bill's provisions which would permit the President to transfer war materials to warring "democracies" and declared that Britain needed no aid beyond what she already was getting from the United States.

"No one can read this bill," Johnson wrote, "and doubt that its ultimate effect, if not its declared purpose, will be to take us into war."

Clark saw the bill as a gamble "upon the one card of a complete British victory."

Stakes Our Safety

"It stakes our national safety on the victory of one belligerent in a foreign war and brings us to the very brink of war while at the same time permitting the serious weakening of our own means of defending ourselves and our brethren in this hemisphere."

As the first speaker against the bill in the Senate debate, Clark urged that there be no "name-calling" and that members give "faith and credence" to the arguments of those with whom they disagree.

"If this bill is passed," he said, "this may be among the last of the opportunities that we shall have to exercise that right."

Clark said he spoke "with authority" in assuring the Senate that opponents had no "desire to unduly prolong the debate" and referred to the "brief few days" the discussion would occupy the chamber.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) charged today that the British aid bill would confer on President Roosevelt powers akin to those which he said enabled Premier Daladier to take France into war without regard for constitutional restrictions.

Attacking the legislation anew, the Montanan asserted in a statement that if the nation wants to help Britain, Congress should vote $2,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000 in cash.

Wheeler's statement preceded the opening of the second day of debate in the Senate, where the anti-bill forces called on Senators Clark (D., Mo.) and Vandenberg (R., Mich.) for the first speeches.

The lend-lease pact presented the first of its arguments yesterday, when Senators Barkley (D., Ky.), Austin (R., Vt.), Pepper (D., Fla.), and Thomas (D., Utah) took the floor to plead for enactment of the measure as vital to national security.

Pepper told the chamber that "call it war, or not call it war, the American people will not let England fall to Hitler." If the lend-lease program fails to save the English, he predicted, the United States would go ahead and "save them anyway."

Austin, like Barkley, declared that Hitler must be destroyed, and climaxed his speech with the shouted words, "If it ever becomes necessary for us to fight, we will fight."

Rose Hobart Gets Western Divorce

Former K. H. S. Student Sues in California

Rose Hobart, actress, who formerly lived at Woodstock and as a student attended Kingston High School as Rose Kefer, yesterday at Los Angeles, Calif., obtained a divorce from William Mason Grosvenor, Jr., executive of a New York chemical engineering firm.

The Associated Press says the actress charged her husband with desertion and cruelty. The suit was not contested.

Miss Hobart and Mr. Grosvenor were married on October 9, 1932, in Mount Kisco, N. Y. She was then a member of the cast of the play "I Loved You Wednesday."

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kefer of Rochester, and began her stage career at the age of 15. Her father was once first cellist in the New York Symphony Orchestra and her mother was a concert singer.

Mr. Grosvenor is vice president of his father's firm, the William Grosvenor Laboratories of 30 East Forty-first street. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1927.

WHAT IT MEANS

The President's Emergency Powers and Lease-Lend Bill

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
Washington—The lease-lend bill touches the fuse again to the perennial debate over the emergency powers of the President.

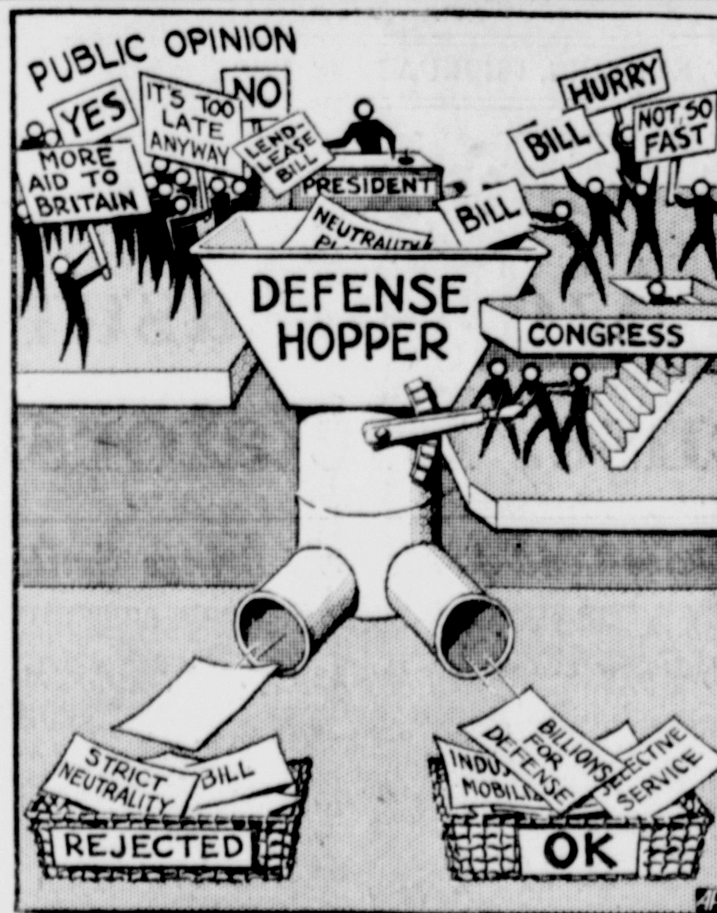

Legal lights even have refined the thing down to the fine point of arguing the meaning of words like "make" and "declare" as they appear in the Constitution.

In the past historians have woven powers into the role of public opinion, and biographers have psycho-analyzed the personal leadership of Presidents, attributing to it the great powers often exercised by a strong President.

The historian's point is easier to prove. All authorities agree that public opinion is the fountainhead of the President's powers, especially in emergencies. Public approval saved T. Roosevelt from a fate worse than a political death when he took the Panama Canal Zone.

The only question is, which came first, the public opinion or the President's influence on that public opinion? At any rate, most authorities agree that during crises Congress usually acts merely to ratify the decisions made by Presidents.

The first use of emergency powers by a President came almost immediately after the union was formed. President Washington proclaimed an emergency and ordered out troops to quell the Pennsylvania whiskey rebellion. The farmers were using arms to back up their boycott of a new whiskey tax. As they saw it, they couldn't get their grain to market in any other form than as distilled whiskey and the new tax worked a hardship on them. Congress changed the law in their favor, but still the farmers rioted. After a year or so, Washington tired of waiting for peace. He issued his proclamation and sent the soldiers to back it up. Those two acts of the first President are highly significant, because they were taken independently of Congress, and thereby established precedent.

A cartoonist's (greatly simplified) conception of the Federal Law-making Machinery

Since that day both Presidents and Congresses have declared emergencies, depending on which one got the idea first. Lincoln started the Civil War months before he called Congress.

Presidents usually welcome legal background for their emergency decisions, sometimes create it. For instance, when President Roosevelt declared an emergency last year, he (1) followed the Washington precedent but also, (2) by that act he put life into several laws that lie dormant until an emergency arises.

One of these is the preparedness law of 1916, which gives the President powers to mobilize industry, increase the size of the army and navy in the event of war or a threat of war. It's up to either the President or Congress to decide what is a threat of war. Either can declare an emergency.

Close students of basic laws tell me the Constitution can be construed as giving the President almost any power he can get by with exercising, merely because it does not mention emergency powers.

Others take a more cautious view. They assume it's the President's sworn duty to defend the nation, and his capacity as commander-in-chief of the army and navy gives him the power—in fact makes it his duty—to commit acts of war without consulting Congress, if those acts defend the nation in an emergency. On the other hand, Congress on its own initiative can reach the decision that the nation is in danger, and declare war. Or it could declare a war of aggression, although the President may not do that.

They base this argument on the fact that the founding fathers debated whether Congress should have the power to MAKE war or to DECLARE war. The original word was "make." "Declare" was substituted when it was pointed out that the President might have to make war to defend our shores while Congress was gathering.

The trouble with that argument is that almost any act of war ordered by a President or a military officer would be called defensive whether it actually was or not. And so nothing is settled.

In the Spanish-American and the World War—a new technique began to develop in the White House. Both Presidents McKinley and Wilson tried to keep Congress, public opinion and Presidential emergency decisions abreast of each other. How much influence they wielded to create the public opinion that touched off the declaration of war still is hotly debated.

President Roosevelt added a new twist. He openly sought public approval of a decision to back the democracies' short of war" long before World War II started. He declared a state of emergency, which in itself influenced public opinion.

Then, when the time was ripe in his opinion to strike for more aid to Britain, he merely recommended a course to Congress, as summing public opinion would force Congress to trail along. So far, that plan has worked well for him. The House has already passed the lease-lend bill, and impartial observers say the Senate will, too.

Turco-Bulgarian Pact Proves Severe, Not Disastrous Blow To Great Britain and Allies

British Position Better Than Four Months Ago, However; Pact Has Wide Range

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The Turco-Bulgarian non-aggression pact, as Berlin claims, a feather in the Reich's hat, and by the same token it represents a severe though not disastrous setback for Britain and her allies in both diplomatic and military spheres.

Or we can put it this way: The Anglo-Allies have suffered a sharp reverse in the Mediterranean theatre, but their position as a whole is immeasurably better than it was four months ago.

Within that period they have all but smashed the Roman empire in Africa. This has vastly reduced the threat to Egypt and the Suez Canal, increased Britain's domination of the Mediterranean, and so weakened Italy that Hitler has had to rush to her rescue.

As the situation now stands I should say that Hitler has thrown fresh difficulties in Britain's path and has eased his own position somewhat, but may not have increased his striking power so as to influence the trend of the war greatly.

There still is a lot to be expected about that non-aggression pact. It is widely interpreted as indicating that Turkey won't fight unless the Nazis attack her. That is to say, the Germans can occupy Bulgaria, and they can attack Greece from Bulgarian territory, without fear of Turkish intervention.

Can't Endure Germany
Should this prove to be true, it's difficult to see how little Greece can be saved. She has whipped the Fascists plenty, but she can't stand up against the might of Germany, and it's doubtful whether the British can give sufficient aid in time to save her ally.

However, the text of the non-aggression pact as made public doesn't bind Turkey not to fight in defense of Greece. On the other hand it specifically leaves the Turks free to carry out existing commitments with other countries. One of those commitments is a mutual assistance pact with Greece, and another is an alliance with Britain.

Because of this, London professes to expect that Turkey will hold to her alliance. The Greeks, too, hope for help, but I should say that they must have grave fears their hope won't come true.

One certainly would expect the Turks to fight if the Nazis should attack them and try to force the Dardanelles to get into the Near East. Rushing to the defense of Greece is another thing, especially since Hitler has given no indication that he intends to make a drive against the Turks.

Actually, the signs are that Hitler doesn't want to see a Balkan upheaval. He hopes to force the Greeks to make peace by the mere threat of invasion. If that doesn't work, his war machine likely will start to roll through Thrace—probably avoiding any contact with the Turkish frontier.

Would Seal Peninsula
What Hitler is trying to do, as I see it, is to gain control of the Balkans clear down to the Aegean and Turkish territory, thereby sealing up the Balkan peninsula against a possible British attempt to open up a new battle-front with a drive against the German rear. This is calculated to safeguard the fuhrer while he makes his all-out drive against England in the western theatre. I don't believe he intends any major offensive to try to force the Dardanelles at this juncture, unless the Turks support the Greeks, though he might undertake it if unexpected developments made it look like a good gamble.

German occupation of Greece would, of course, give the Nazis valuable air-bases for operations against the British in the eastern Mediterranean. It also would tend to cut the Britons off from access to the Adriatic and the eastern coast of Italy.

However, it wouldn't deprive the Anglo-Allies of the powerful naval and air base on the Greek Island of Crete which lies in a strategic position in the mouth of the Aegean. It is said, too, unofficially without confirmation, that Britain has turned the Greek island of Samothrace, northeast of Lemnos, into a tremendous air base with every modern accommodation.

Why has Turkey signed this non-aggression pact? Balkan diplomats and observers generally think they see the hand of Mr. Heilmann's parents, have now rented an apartment from Mrs. Loomis.

present, Nathaniel lived in Woodstock for a number of years and is the son of Walter E. Weyl, who prior to his death was regarded as one of the most prominent sociologists in this country. It was Walter Weyl who collaborated with Theodore Roosevelt in the drafting of the platform of the Progressive party, and he was invited to Oyster Bay for that purpose by Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Weyl's mother was Bertha Poole, sister of the well known novelist Ernest Poole. She presented the Woodstock Library with its present building.

A meeting has been called, to be held in the Methodist Church Tuesday, February 25, to discuss what can be done here toward our share of providing food for the starving people of Europe.

The meeting will be one of open discussion of the problem and it is believed that something constructive will come out of an open debate on the matter. Reference has been made here to the matter several times and always with increasing interest.

ALLABEN

Allaben, Feb. 17—A Valentine's party was held in the Allaben school on Friday afternoon. The party was held in the large room. Valentine games were held, the winner's receiving prizes which were donated by Ludwig Bonstein. The Valentine's box was opened and each child as well as the teachers were presented with valentines which were purchased and made by the pupils.

Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and cocoa were served by four of the pupils from the higher grades, ably assisted by the primary teacher, Mrs. E. C. Burgher. Decorations in the primary room were made by the primary pupils.

Pupils having the highest average in the third and fourth grades for the mid-term examinations were: Mervale Jones, fourth grade; Stanley Fitchner, third grade; Jeanette Van Etten, third grade; Sherman Knight, third grade.

Mr. Peck, scoutmaster of the Allaben-Shandaken troop, took the boys to the court of honor at West Shokan, Thursday night.

Y.W.C.A. to Hold Finance Drive

Committee Workers Plan Campaign Week of March 28-April 8

Announcement is made by the Y.W.C.A. finance committee that the annual budget drive will be conducted from March 28 to April 8.

Mrs. John B. Sterley is to be the general chairman and in making the general plans for the drive, she is being assisted by Mrs. Raymond Rignall and Mrs. James H. Betts, in charge of the publicity, and by the following members of the finance committee: Mrs. Charles Arnold, Mrs. Theodor Culver, Mrs. Joseph Craig, Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, Mrs. George Ross, Mrs. Charles Ramsey, Mrs. Alva Staples, Mrs. Myron Teller, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, and Mrs. A. Noble Graham; also club representatives, Mrs. Arthur Colligan, Mrs. Phillips Ramsey, Mrs. T. W. Reynolds, Miss Adiska Conno, Miss Bertha Waterman.

The campaign organization will be made up of three divisions, one from the general "Y" membership, one from the Women's Club, and one from the business and professional group, each division to be subdivided into teams.

A special meeting of the finance committee is scheduled for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, at which time further details will be planned.

No Report Is Made Upon Rejections of Local Selectees

It was said at the office of the Kingston Selective Service Board this morning that no word was received from Albany as to how many of the quota of 19 men that was sent to the induction station there on Monday were accepted. Owing to the large number of selectees reporting from the upstate districts to the Albany induction station it was not expected that physical examinations would be made until today.

The draft board said that through an error they had included Charles Ferguson of 19 Ann street as a member of the colored contingent, Mr. Ferguson, however, is white, and was included with the white contingent yesterday when the draft board discovered the error.

A call was received for a quota of 21 men to be sent to the Albany induction station on March 3 from this city. Of that number 19 will be white and two colored.

Catholics 'Denote' Pontius Pilate in Testament Version

Kansas City, Feb. 18 (AP)—After almost 2,000 years, Pontius Pilate has been denoted.

Recorded in Biblical history as governor of Judea, the man who delivered Jesus to his Roman superiors to be crucified will be listed simply as procurator of the Roman province in a streamlined revision of the Catholic New Testament.

The revision—the first since 1749—will be released May 18, designated as Biblical Sunday in the United States.

Bishop Edwin O'Hara of Kansas

City, chairman of a confraternity committee which rewrote the New Testament in modern language, explained that Pilate was not a governor in the modern sense, but a fiscal agent of Rome with judicial powers.

The revision is the result of nearly five years work by the committee, comprising Bishop O'Hara, Archbishop John Gregory Murray of St. Paul, Minn., Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati and an editorial board of outstanding scripture scholars.

The confraternity has started revising the Old Testament. This work will require two or three years more.

Many words of Latin derivation, no longer commonly used, have been omitted. The frequent "concupiscence" has been replaced by "lust." Such outmoded words as "saith," "callesth" and "took place" have been changed to "said," "called" and "was." The often used "tidings" and "this day" have become simply "news" and "today."

In the Gospel concerning the laborers in the vineyard, each will receive his "denarius" instead of "penny." The "denarius" was a silver coin equivalent to 1/84th of a Roman pound and "penny" does not convey the proper value.

Chairman, Newspaper Publishers Committee

MAKE no mistake about it—it isn't necessary to have accurate news. It isn't always even pleasant.

But accurate news is necessary if you want to live in a democracy. If you are content to have a government do all your thinking and all your governing for you, then it is quite all right for your newspapers to tell you pleasant little nothings, to soothe you, flatter you, deceive you.

For instance, the newspapers in any totalitarian state give their readers glowing tales of the goodness and rightness of the "Leaders," and paint horror pictures of "those stupid people in America who try to govern themselves!" This pleases their masses—and satisfies them.

And the totalitarian press also decides what businesses are to be allowed to exist. If you were a merchant in such a country you would be told, perhaps, that this Tuesday was Fish Soup Day. No matter how much you might like to offer beef stew to your customers, you must advertise fish soup. And you not say about it what you are told to say, not what may be the truth. You could not tell the customers that fish soup was lacking vitamins or short on calories and not worth as much per can as beef stew. The dictators would decide such questions.

Maybe a few Americans would be content to live under such a system. But most of us wouldn't.

We want our news raw. We want it real. We want it uncensored. We want our advertising to tell the truth and to hit hard. We want the best man to win at elections and the best product to get the customers.

As long as we keep on wanting these things—keep on demanding them—there's no danger of losing our freedom. We may back the wrong candidate, pass the wrong law or buy the wrong brand of overalls once in a while, but as long as we have the right to criticize and to compete, the right to have the truth even when it hurts, we'll have some sort of democracy.

And only when we become such moral cowards that we prefer soothing syrup to straight-from-the-shoulder reporting will we see our newspapers edited by the head of a government bureau and supported by subsidy.

NOTE: The Newspaper Publishers Committee, composed of over 350 leading American Newspapers, publishes these messages simultaneously each week. The force which unites these newspapers is their recognition of their responsibility to you, the reader.

New British Offensive Might Be Against Italo Peninsula

that city as they have Bardia, Tobruk and Bengasi.

Instead, with Bengasi as a westernmost base for operations, a series of local attacks on Italian ports, communications and industrial centers was viewed in informed circles as likely to have better results than extension of British lines some 600 miles further west to Tripoli.

The Italian railroad system with thousands of miles of tracks hugging the coastline, it was pointed out, is well within the range of battleship guns, as well as bombers.

Such coast artillery bases as Civitavecchia, port 38 miles from Rome, would be another obvious objective, it was asserted.

Quick but jarring stabs at such points, it was said, would hamper Italy's efforts to reinforce her armies in Africa and Albania, and might require Germany to divert to Italy additional men, planes and defense guns from the important western front opposite England.

The widespread attack by the RAF Saturday night on objectives in Sicily, where German dive bombers have been based, and Brindisi, at the southern end of the Italian boot, would fit into the picture drawn for the second phase of operations, it was said. So too, would the Feb. 9 naval assault on Genoa.

Quiet has been reported the past few days on the North African land front, while the British have said continued advances were made into Eritrea, Italian Somaliland and toward Gondar in Ethiopia.

Wanted: Someone Who Stole Museum's Snakes

Bear Mountain, N. Y., Feb. 18

(P)—Bear Mountain museum officials can't understand why someone made off with the museum's entire collection of 12 non-poisonous snakes, especially since the reptiles came from nearby woods teeming with similar specimens.

The great snake-snatch was disclosed yesterday by Museum Director William H. Carr, who said the snakes were not worth more than $12. Carr has a sentimental attachment for one of them, a pilot blacksnake that goes by the name of Gentle George.

George is about five feet six inches long, dark complexioned, with black eyes and an engaging smile. He got the nickname of "Gentle," says Carr, because he wouldn't harm a mouse, unless he was hungry.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Feb. 17—Donald Kelder of Pine Hill was a caller in Shokan Monday.

Henry J. Gebbelein came up from Brooklyn Thursday for a brief sojourn at his village center place.

Harvey Silkworth, who is spending the winter in Kingston, recently called on friends and relatives here.

Miss Annette Robeson writes local friends that she is getting along well in her studies and other activities at Tusculum College, Greenville, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Pfiffer of Schenectady spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Otis Wright of the north boulevard.

Elwyn Winchell is home again after having been a hospital patient for four weeks.

A death of February 17, 1875, was that of Miss Addie Castle. Funeral services were conducted February 20, in the Shokan Reformed Church by the Rev. Mr. Fiero, pastor of the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Dunn of Woodhaven were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richter at the Richter home on the state road.

Henry Winchell of the Samsonville road was a recent caller in Shokan.

Guests during the week of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf included Mrs. Elmendorf's sister, Mrs. F. Clarke, and son Frank, also H. Towne, all of Pittsfield, Mass.

A meeting of the Shokan Home Bureau was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sam Friedman at Brown's. The ladies at this meeting took up the first lesson of the foods course.

Dose of Own Medicine

Dunn, N. C. (P)—A man in the Harnett county recorder's court charged with drunkenness asked that he be allowed to sentence himself. His suggestion: 60 days on the roads, suspended upon payment of the costs and with the stipulation that the defendant remain sober and law-abiding for two years. "I reckon that ought to stop me," the man told the jurist, who agreed—and approved the sentence.

Customer (pointing to laundry parcel)—Is that my name in Chinese?

Laundryman (hesitatingly)—No, Customer (curiously)—Is it some kind of identifying mark?

What is it?

Laundryman—Just description. Means lil fat man, cloaked nose, no teeth.

Paradox
God sits on His heavenly throne. Feeling very, very sad—
The dogs are roaming peacefully, and the humans have gone mad!

Two slightly inebriated men met on the street.
Said the first—Do you know what time it is?
Said the second—Yes.
Said the first—Thanks.

WORRIES—Life provides us with enough trouble to keep us busy. But as if this were not enough, some of us are not content unless we collect additional troubles from the outside. A foolish practice. For worry is the interest paid by those who borrow trouble.

Strange they should get together.

Englishman—Yes, my family is fairly connected. I have traced some of my ancestors and found that one of them held up Queen Anne's train.

American—Speaking of trains, it ain't so many years ago that my grandfather held up a train in Texas.

Irishman—Queer, we all seem to be in the holdup business. My father manufactures suspenders.

A teacher called for brief essays on "The Funniest Thing I Ever Saw." One boy got through several minutes before the others, and the teacher asked to see his effort. On his paper was written, "The Funniest thing I ever saw was too funny for words."

Did the rich man take him on? The rich man eyed the young man up and down.

Rich Man—So you want to marry my daughter? Have you already fixed the date of the wedding?

Youth—I leave that entirely to your daughter.

Rich Man—Do you want a big wedding or a small family affair?

Youth—I leave that entirely to your wife, sir.

Rich Man—How big is your income, young man?

Youth—I leave that entirely to you, sir.

Wife (to husband at dinner)—You wouldn't read that book on etiquette, and now look at you! Here's the dessert and all you've got left is a butter spreader.

Junior—Uncle John, one of the boys at school said I looked exactly like you.

Jerry—What did you say?

Junior—Nothing, he's bigger'n I am.

Men ought to look as neat as they would like their wives to be.

A man stepped into a cigar store and asked the price of a brand of cigars.

Clerk—Two for fifteen.

Smoker—I'll take one.

Clerk—That will be 10 cents.

The buyer paid the dime, took his cigar and left.

A Scotchman who had overheard the conversation hurried up to the counter and said: "Here's a nickel . . . I'll take the other one."

One way to see how good things are is to figure out how much worse they might be.

ALONG CAME CINDERELLA

By VIVIAN GREY

YESTERDAY, Roger Cosgrave is not the sort of young man to get into difficulties, but he has. He is to marry a poised and charming Emily Perry in a month—and he is madly in love with a girl from the New York tenements named Lovely Daye. And he has known Lovely only a couple of days. Now Roger's mother, Marcia Cosgrave, has asked her son to explain himself to her and to Emily.

Chapter 12 Tough Spot

ROGER didn't answer immediately. He sat staring at the pattern of the rug, not because he wished to avoid anything, merely because he was trying to find words with which to couch the truth he must tell.

Emily was looking at him, her wide gray eyes calm but shadowed. Her face looked as if she was crying slowly, inwardly.

"John had no business to come here like that," Roger said finally. "But there is a girl, mother. I mean besides Emily."

"What do you mean? Who is she? And what is this being going on? And what in the world is there a girl? You're marrying Emily shortly and then there will be no more girls. Every young man has his affairs. I'd hate to think my son was any different."

The words had come quickly and in a relieved tone as if she had discovered there was less than she had feared.

"But this is different, mother," Roger persisted. "I mean—" he found it difficult to go on. The thing that had happened had surprised him so that how could he expect anyone else to understand it? "It isn't just an affair."

Marcia smiled sweetly. "Just what are you trying to say, Roger?" in a pretty sort of helplessness and exasperation. Things had always been simple for Marcia Cosgrave. Going from parents who adored her to a husband who adored her more had made her life a thing that moved at her desire.

Roger looked at Emily. Her presence was making it doubly hard. Yet he had no wish to conceal anything from her. It was just that her sweet face made him feel doubly unworthy. Then his mother was speaking in that pleasant but imperious voice that took everything for granted.

"You must be sensible, Roger. You've always been sensible about everything before. I know how it is, Emily's probably feeling the same way now the wedding's so near. Half afraid there's some other man she'd rather marry. Why, I felt that way about your father, dear."

Marcia paused as if to give him time to get over his astonishment at that.

"I wasn't at all sure when the time came. And you couldn't find a happier couple than we've been."

"I know, mother," Roger said, aware of Emily's haunted eyes on him.

"Of course you do, so everything's all right. The wedding is going on exactly as we planned. Why we couldn't do anything else now, with the Perrys going away on their Mexican trip as soon as Emily's married. Isn't that sweet?"

Emily was looking down at her hands. Roger's diamond still sparkled there. She started slipping it off and on. Roger thought she looked as if she was about to cry. He must do something. He must. What? Anything he could do in honesty would be sure to make her tears real.

"Now I'm going to leave you children alone. That's probably the trouble. You haven't had any time to yourselves lately. Too many parties. And another one tonight. Aunt Amalia's dinner for you and Emily, Roger. Both families. It's such a lovely thing of Aunt Amalia. Well, you'll soon be off on your honeymoon together!"

She was gone and Emily sat facing Roger in the tense silence. "You should have told her, Roger," Emily said finally. She knew it was tactless. But the silence had gotten unendurable.

"I tried, didn't I?" with the first impatience he had ever shown her. "What can you do with a woman like that? Mother's always been that way. Had her will about things. God knows I wish she could now. I wish it was as easy as that."

How It Had Begun
EMILY was staring at him as if in surprise at discovering he could be impatient. Something about it made him faintly angry. She was too good and she had taken it for granted he was that way. That annoyed him intensely.

She seemed to expect him to be superhuman just because she was able to live in that smooth unruffled shell of sweetness. His thought turned to Lovely. Lovely with her quick moods, her flights of temper and of tenderness. A man could be himself with her. He knew as he sat there in the library, its venetian blinds drawn against the brilliant light of the late August day, that he was a little glad to escape from having to live up to Emily.

Some day he would cut loose emotionally one way or another—perhaps not in anger, but some way. And then Emily would be shocked and startled and hurt. With Lovely he hadn't that to fear. Life had been frank and ruthless with her long before he'd met her, and now she was joyously grateful for its unexpected little tendernesses and niceties. "What are you going to do?" Emily asked finally. "What can I do?" still with that note of impatience. "Roger you've got to go on with it—the presents, and all—" she was toying with his ring again. "You've said that before." He felt as if he was being cruel to a helpless puppy. If only she'd flare up and tell him she hated him for it all.

But she didn't. Instead she leaned back in the big chair and covered her face with her hand. She sat so motionless and wordless, for a long time and Roger was reminded of that other time when she had sat in a wing chair so quietly. At Mari's party when she had overheard her cousin John talking about Lovely. He felt like an actor in a weird play. This thing couldn't be happening to him.

Roger remembered with startled clarity the day Emily's mother had come into the living room as he waited to take Emily to the dog show at Madison, New Jersey. It was late May. Mrs. Perry had started to talk of their engagement as if it was an already established fact.

"I think it would be nice to announce it soon, Roger," she had said.

Roger tried to recover his emotions at that time. There had been no other girl he liked as well as Emily. Probably all this stuff about a grand passion was foolishness. There wasn't such a thing. His mother and father adored Emily as the daughter they had never had.

So he had watched Winthrop Ramsey show the Cosgrave Beddingtons and Kerry Blues that day in a glamorous haze. He was to be an engaged man!

Roger bought the ring for Emily next day.

Well, it hadn't been Emily's fault any more than it had been his. As a matter of fact it really hadn't been very fair to her.

Strange Request
FINALLY Emily looked up at him, a strange expression on her misery-masked face.

"Roger," she said in a very small voice. "I want you to do something for me."

Roger looked at her, waiting for her to go on. He dared not say he would. She might ask something he couldn't do—like give Lovely up.

"I want to see her. I want you to take me up there. Now." Her voice came in little broken pieces with taut silences between.

Roger wasn't sure he had heard aright. He stared at Emily. "I want to see her, Roger," she insisted. "I must see her."

"But," hesitatingly, "I can't do that!"

"Why not?" her hands moved out in the dimness of the room like pale ghosts of appeal. "Why not, Roger? We're two girls in love—" she paused and changed it, "who want the same man. If I thought she really loved you—" she paused thoughtfully. It was a long time before she went on. Blaze had gotten up, tired of inactivity and strolled from the room.

"Roger," she said, "I think we have a right to see each other. You have belonged to me first. I have a right to see the girl I give you up to, if I must give you up. The last scarcely above a whisper."

Emily showed a firmness that Roger had never suspected existing under her soft pretty exterior. There were depths of sustaining metal there he'd never touched before. He was to see more of that quality as months wore on.

Eventually they were walking to the garage together. They got into a roadster and Roger backed out expertly. Marcia Cosgrave watched them and smiled contentedly.

Everything was all fixed again. They were going out together and they looked completely poised as if nothing was wrong. Young Love had its ups and downs. Marcia thought indulgently. It was unthinkable that Emily shouldn't eventually be her daughter. Emily was so suited to fit in their family circle and ornament the home Roger would eventually create for her.

She was perfect for carrying on all of the fine old Cosgrave tradition. She belonged with all of the priceless old Cosgrave possessions. It would be a pleasure to pass them on to her. Marcia Cosgrave's heart was light and glowing with happiness.

Emily and Roger rode up the hill in silence. There were still hollyhocks in bloom around Granny Hale's cottage. Phlox was a riot of tender lavender and white at the edge of the lawn. Old fashioned Lady-of-the-Lake lifted heliotrope spikes toward the sun. A gnarled apple tree bent under its weight of fruit.

"It's beautiful!" Emily's voice was muted.

Roger knew quite well what she was thinking. Honeymoon cottage. That's what it always had been. And she had always loved the place, and supposed her own marriage would start there. It would be, if not their real home, their hide-away. The place they'd go when they felt the need of each other and the sky and the stars and the scent of flowers blowing in from the garden.

But Lovely did not come to the door immediately.

E. A. Milliken Speaks To Women's Clubs

"Stage Settings" was the topic at the special meeting of Sorosis Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Arthur J. Laidlaw. Members of Atharhacton Club were invited guests to hear Albert Edward Milliken address the meeting on the topic.

The speaker traced the history of stage settings from the time of the Greek and Roman theatre, when the only settings were architectural, to the 19th century. Mr. Milliken told that the French and Italian sets of that time were especially elaborate when anything lavish gained appeal to the audiences.

Following his preliminary words the speaker discussed the manner in which sets are put together in the present day. He referred to the summer theatre at Woodstock and stated that the biggest setback to the summer crews was lack of time. He went on to explain that the basis of most stage sets are the flats. Later Mr. Milliken explained the use of lights and the opportunities which the use of lights have given to every play producer.

After this the speaker showed five of his constructed stage sets. They included two sets for the phantasy "The Blue Forest," one a street scene in a French village, the other a forest scene. The third set was arranged for an architectural design for "One Arabian Night." An interior for "The White Pony," purchased by Shuberts, was the fourth set displayed. Mr. Milliken's fifth was his own play, "Sun Metal," which was given at Woodstock two seasons ago. It was an outdoor scene in the Andes Mountains with the ruins of an Inca Temple in the foreground.

Olympian Hears of Crafts

Olympian Club met with Mrs. E. V. K. Schutt Monday evening at her home on Mountain View avenue. The paper on "Arts and Crafts of the Scandinavians," written by Miss Hale, was read by Miss Rina Finn. Miss Hale wrote of the weaving and workings in silver and glass of the Scandinavians which were simple and sturdy like the people themselves. She also mentioned the fine arts and crafts exhibit at the New York World's Fair.

"The Winds of Spring" by Havinghurst was reviewed in a fine manner by Miss Anna McCullough. The next meeting of the club will be March 3 at the home of the Misses Hale.

West Park Rector And Wife Given Farewell Dinner

The parishioners of the Church of the Ascension, West Park, and of Holy Trinity Church, Highland, with their friends gathered at Broglio's in West Park Monday evening for a surprise farewell dinner to the Rev. Arthur McKay Ackerson and Mrs. Ackerson.

The Rev. Mr. Ackerson, after having served as rector of both these Episcopal churches for the past five and one-half years, has accepted a call to All Saints Church, City, N. J., at which place he will assume his duties as rector on February 26. His last service at the Highland and West Park churches will be Sunday, February 23.

After dinner the toastmaster of the evening, Theodore Oxholm, presented the program. Catholic Daughters Have Social

At the February business meeting of Court Santa Maria, 164, Catholic Daughters of America, much business of importance was transacted. A favorable report on the success of the recent card party for the benefit of charity fund was given, and the welfare committee reported progress in knitting and other work along this line. The motion made at the January meeting to hold an anniversary dinner February 25 was rescinded and the dinner indefinitely postponed.

Following the meeting a Valentine social was held. Games were enjoyed and a delicious buffet luncheon was served. The table and effects were decorated in keeping with St. Valentine's day. The committee in charge were Mrs. L. Mitchell, Miss M. Ulrich, Miss M. Costello, Mrs. M. Dulin and Miss C. Pillsworth.

The next business meeting will be held March 14th, which will be followed by a St. Patrick's day social in charge of Mrs. M. Fredenburgh, Mrs. M. Gorman, Mrs. M. Connelly and Mrs. H. Tancredi.

Secretary Addresses Auxiliary

The regular meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Women's Auxiliary was held at the "Y" Friday afternoon. Mrs. George H. DuBois presided at the meeting and Mrs. Clarence Rowland led the devotional service. DRESS WITH DETACHABLE PEPLUM

Marian Martin PATTERN 9658

Designed for the wide-awake girl who likes smart, amusing variety at little cost—this ingenious young frock by Marian Martin. For Pattern 9658 is a chamelon style, with several changes in one pattern. The magic lies in that versatile, detachable peplum that may match or contrast. Twist it in front, sarong-style, with a back knot, or let it tie-on with a pert little bow in back or in front. Then, when you want a simpler style, just leave off the peplum and use a narrow belt. The bodice is softened by gathering at either side of the seam, and the short sleeves may be plain or trimmed with matching or contrasting cuffs. If you want to feel really dressed up, perch a cluster of flowers on your shoulder and ruffle the edges of the peplum and cuffs.

Pattern 9658 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, 3 5/8 yards 39 inches.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins for this MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER.

Success to your Spring Sewing...with the Marian Martin Pattern Book, just out! The only printed collection of the famous designs featured daily in this paper. Solves Overcoat Problem

Montreal—The services of a transportation solomon were needed to solve a problem raised by two passengers who on the same day and on the same Canadian National Railway train forgot their overcoats. When descriptions were compared it was found each passenger sought an overcoat made by the same manufacturer which was identical in size, color and style. The lost and found experts finally made identification through articles in the pockets.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

NEW BABY'S CARD, ATTACHED TO THAT OF MOTHER ALONE, DOES NOT INDICATE THAT PARENTS ARE SEPARATED

A point made in the letter quoted below interests me especially because its writer's point of view is precisely that of a guess I made in this column several weeks ago. This letter asks: "What does it mean when an announcement of a new baby doesn't include both parents' names? A card which I received today is that of the mother alone; to this is tied the card of the baby. Does this also announce that there is a serious rift between the parents? I do know it was reported a few months ago that they might separate."

Several weeks ago, writing about birth announcements, I said that even though the old-fashioned convention has always been, and still is, to send the baby's little card tied to the card of the mother alone, I thought it much better to send the double card of father and mother—because someone might think the mother's card alone meant that the parents had separated. This may be true in the case you speak of, but this announcement of itself can hardly be taken as proof of it.

Travelling Expenses of Wedding Attendants

Dear Mrs. Post: When the bride and groom are having just two attendants and having a very small wedding, are they supposed to pay the travelling expenses of these two people who in our case are coming quite a distance for such a quiet time? And as these two people are married (to each other) may the bride and groom give them a combined present of something for their house?

Answer: I would say yes to the last half of your question, but I am not quite sure how to answer the first half. Ordinarily the bride and groom do not pay the travelling expenses of their attendants. In this case, where these two best friends of yours are necessarily taking double expenses from their single family budget, the propriety of your sending them their tickets would depend upon personal rather than conventional circumstances. If they have little money, and you are well-to-do, and if you very much want to, it would not be improper on their part to accept such expenses. On the other hand, it would not be unappreciatively rude on their part to refuse.

Normal School News

The Junior Class of New Paltz Normal School presented a fashion show as the assembly program this morning. The theme of the show was "What to Wear for Junior Week-end." The week-end affair will occur in May.

The models were members of the class. Their apparel, new spring styles, included sports wear, tea dresses, and evening clothes. Both young men's and young women's clothes were featured.

A committee of students from New Paltz Normal School attended a conference concerning extra-curricular activities at Columbia University on Saturday. The group participated in a panel discussion on the topics: Better Student Government, The College Social Program, and The Function of House Presidents. The subjects are in connection with research work being carried on by the Normal students.

Dr. Price of Stanford University was chairman of the meeting.

Montreal Trucker Is Hurt on 9-W

Morris Kussner Declares Deputy Trailer Vehicle Crowded Him

A Montreal truck driver en route to New York was injured when the machine left the road and turned over north of Lake Katrine, on route 9-W near Mt. View Rest at 5:30 o'clock this morning.

The driver, Morris Kussner, according to Deputy Sheriff Herbert Segelken, was not seriously injured but he was taken to the Kingston Hospital by the officer shortly after the later arrived at the scene.

Alec Massian also of Montreal, who was riding in the truck reported no injuries.

The cause of the accident as described to the deputy sheriff as the manipulation of a heavy tractor-trailer truck which passed over the road. The two men and the heavy truck, which proceeded without stopping, pressed far over on the wrong side of the highway forcing the lighter machine into the roadside ditch.

The Montreal truck, owned by the Main Fish Co., of the Canadian city carried a cargo of dried cod fish for a market in New York.

At the Kingston Hospital the injured man was treated for a leg injury by Dr. Chester B. Van Cansbeck. The physician said that Kussner would remain in the hospital for several days.

Uster Contributed Only Few Votes In Milk Ballot

Uster county polling places distributed only a few ballots to the voting yesterday on the proposed revisions of the federal-state milk marketing order, it was announced today.

Area dairymen voted at Kingston, Accord, Ellenville, Gardiner and Wallkill and representatives of the local farm bureau were in charge at the polling places.

Ballots were not expected to be completed this afternoon and the total vote was not available. It was stated, however, that only three votes were cast in Kingston.

Ballots were forwarded to Albany last evening and slow returns from all voting places in the state were not expected to be completed before tomorrow.

Votes were cast by individual farmers, members of co-operatives and the Dairymen's League.

Senators Attack British Aid Bill

ed that if the people wanted to aid Britain, they should know how much money Congress intended to vote. That amount, he asserted, should be voted by specific legislation, instead of having Congress "turn over to the President the power to give or to loan any or all of our battleships, cruisers, airplanes, munitions, not only to Great Britain but to any other country he sees fit to give them, including Russia."

Wheeler stated that the constitution of France provided that war could not be declared without consent of both houses of Parliament.

"France," he continued, "granted Premier Daladier unlimited powers for defense of the country, March 19, 1939, and under that authority Premier Daladier guaranteed Poland, and took his country into war without a vote of the two branches of the Congress as provided by the constitution and without the signing of any decree by President Lebrun or by Premier Daladier, and up to this time no declaration of war has ever been made either by the president, premier or French Parliament."

Wheeler coupled this statement with the announcement that he favored incorporating a half dozen restrictive amendments in the pending bill. This was interpreted generally as another tacit concession that opponents had discarded hopes of sending the legislation down to outright defeat.

The restrictive amendments favored by Wheeler included: A ban on convoys; a declaration that the bill gives the President no power beyond what he already has to send troops abroad; a limitation on amount and type of equipment which could be transferred; a requirement that Britain state her "peace terms" before receiving any American aid; an obligation that any equipment sent Britain is not necessary for American defense, and specification of countries to be aided by the legislation.

Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, House Republican floor leader, predicted that any amendments adopted by the Senate would be accepted by the House. Any such amendments, Martin predicted, likely would be limitations, "and any limitations will improve the bill."

The minority leader discussed the British aid program briefly with Wendell L. Willkie last night. Martin voted against the legislation when it passed the House.

Majority Leader Barkley of the Senate forecast that voting on amendments would start before the end of the week and said he expected to obtain the final roll call by the middle of next week. A Saturday session was in prospect to hasten action.

Speak in Whispers! These Cops Really Helped Thief

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—How this item ever got out of police headquarters without being censored is a mystery, but here it is: Two detectives, seeing a junkman struggling to load a 200-pound beer cooler onto his wagon at a bar near headquarters, volunteered to help the junkie yesterday. Job done, they returned to the tavern and told the proprietor. The owner, who had just installed a new cooler, first scowled, then guffawed.

The sleuths had helped the junkie steal the cooler.

Hens With Speed
Tampa, Fla. (AP)—Poultryman Lawrence P. Harlow's hens wear red opaque glass spectacles on their beaks to keep them from injuring each other. The chickens couldn't get exercise any other way so they started fighting. Several were pecked to death, Harlow said. So he devised the spectacles, which prohibit forward vision but do not hamper side vision. The hens soon got used to wearing the glasses and lived peacefully together. Roosters were better behaved than the hens, and didn't have to wear glasses.

of beer, but that he "didn't think he was intoxicated." He explained the actions of his car in "buckling" when he crossed Broadway preceding his arrest by the fact that he was unfamiliar with the gear shift of the car he was driving.

Joseph Sheppard, a waiter at the Governor Clinton Hotel, who said he was at the gas station for an hour or so during the evening and Samuel Masten, who later took charge of the station for a while, both declared that Clearwater appeared to be sober and that they detected no odor of alcohol on his breath. Clearwater was returning from taking Sheppard to a restaurant on Cornell street when he was arrested.

The only witness sworn this morning was Miss Agnes Chmura, a nurse at the Kingston Hospital, and who was on duty when the defendant was brought to the emergency room the night of August 30 for taking samples of his blood and urine.

The remainder of the morning was given to summations by Mr. Flanagan for the defense and District Attorney Haver for the people, and by Judge Conway's charge.

There were no objections to Judge Conway's charge to the jury. The judge stated the law bearing on the case and the jury's duty and responsibility and reviewed in an impartial manner the testimony that had been presented during the two and a half days that the case has been on trial.

Financial and Commercial

Commodities Were Irregular Monday

Improvement in Stocks on Monday; Trading Was Greatly Reduced

Stocks showed some improvement Monday, for the second day, but what advance there was accompanied greatly reduced trading, total transactions being but 356,720 shares, while the close was at the lowest levels of the day.

The Dow-Jones industrial average had a gain of .63 point for the day, to 119.18; the rails were up .14, to 26.79 and utilities advanced .09, to 19.04. The gain in average during the past two sessions totals less than half the losses of Friday.

So far as news affecting the market is concerned it remained about the same. The foreign picture was not bettered by reports of a pending agreement between Bulgaria and Turkey and continued heavy British sea losses, while domestic business news was favorable as for some time past. The Federal Reserve Board reported that the industrial production index rose one point in January, to 139 per cent of the 1935-39 average, a new high. The trend appears to have been sustained so far this month and the index may reach 140. It is estimated that February auto sales may reach 300,000 units, which would be a record month, 2,000 above the 1929 peak and 25,000 over January. Sales of truck tires in 1940 totaled upward of 8,500,000, breaking previous records and the trend continues upward.

Commodities were irregular Monday and the index showed a slight drop for the day. Wheat closed 1/2 to one cent a bushel lower and May contract was at the lowest levels since September. Cotton was unchanged to three points higher. March wool tops went to 128.9, highest price ever registered on the local exchange, as there were rumors that the Government would purchase nearly 25,000,000 yards of woolen fabrics within the next few weeks.

World sugar contracts gained as much as 3 1/2 points. Spot raw sugar advanced two points to three cents a pound.

Steel ingot rate drops to 94.6 per cent of capacity this week against 97.1 per cent last week as mills begin to feel the effect of continued high activity and some suspensions for repairs become necessary.

Sagendorf Points For Century Mark In Loop Scoring

Kingston Cagers Must Win From Ellenville High to Remain in Place for DUSO Crown

With the century mark as his goal Rod Sagendorf of Kingston High School is still the top scorer in the league with a total of 72 points. He has three more games left to play before the Kiammen conclude league action Friday, February 28.

Sagendorf needs 28 more points to hike his present total to 100. This will be quite a job for the young Maroon and White star as he must collect about nine points per game. However, local basketball followers will not fall down on Sagendorf if he doesn't reach his century mark and if he fails to hold his present lead as the loop's best goal-getter. Kingston High, although not a winner of the first half and still an underdog to win the final round, has been pepped plenty by Sagendorf's splendid showing.

Ellenville Here
Tonight at municipal auditorium young Sagendorf and the other Maroon cagers will be out to gain victory number three in the second half competition. Kingston must continue to win if it holds any dreams of winning this half. Ellenville, Kingston's opponent tonight, isn't expected to offer too much in the way of opposition.

Bob Brown of Port Jervis and Frankie Finn of Liberty are Sagendorf's closest rivals for the scoring honor. They have 65 and 62 respectively. Carl Brown of Monticello has 60. Bob Brown, undoubtedly has the best chance to overtake the local ace as he has one more game left to play in the first half.

Monticello's streak to the second half honor will be tested tonight when Newburgh, Newburgh came from behind the other night after losing two games to trim Ellenville. Monticello was idle. Middletown will meet a mediocre Liberty club which isn't altogether an easy foe.

Following are the first 20 scorers in the DUSO League as tabulated by The Freeman sports department:

'Y' Cage Tourney Is Scheduled for March 21 and 22

Port Chester to Be Host to Basketball Teams in New York State; Deadline Is Set

Port Chester—When the outstanding Young Men's Christian Association basketball teams of New York State compete here in the annual "Y" state tournament Friday and Saturday, March 21 and 22, it will mark the first time in years the event has been held in the neighborhood of New York City.

Officials are quite optimistic, too, about the prospect of a record number of teams participating in the competition. Although 12 teams are eligible, never before have more than eight vied for the Empire State championship. To enter, a team must have qualified by either having won or having been runner-up for the championship of its home district. The Westchester County, Manhattan-Bronx, Brooklyn-Queens, Northern New York and Western New York areas each are entitled to send two representatives. The Mid-Hudson district, which embraces only three Association, is permitted only one entry.

As the defending champion and host team, Port Chester, of course, will compete in an effort to retain the crown it won in last year's tourney at Lockport. Lockport won the championship in 1939 and Rome in 1938.

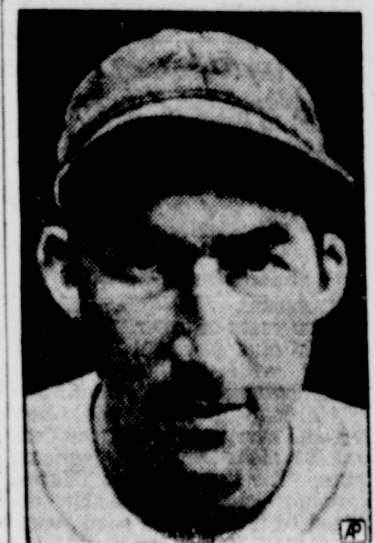

Entries of qualified teams must be mailed to arrive in New York City by Monday, March 17, when the draw will be made by the "Y" State Physical Committee.

HARRY DANNING

Although the New York Giants have 11 players unsigned while preliminary practice is taking place at Miami, Fla., Manager Bill Terry and other Giant officials are thinking about Harry Danning's refusal to accept his 1941 contract. In his California home the ace New York catcher, considered the best in 1940, is asking for $18,500 instead of the terms of $15,000. Club officials say Danning will not be given his desired contract.

Five Games Left In City Tourney

Benoit and Naccarato to Meet Tonight

The city pocket billiard tournament will continue at Nick Kaslich's tonight at 8 o'clock when Eddie Benoit meets Johnny Naccarato. The latter hasn't won a match yet. Benoit has won two and dropped four. His high run was 34.

With the 1941 tournament drawing to a close every match means much to the individual contestant, who had one major hope. That is to dethrone the defending champ, Fred Planthaber. Five games are still to be played. Registering the best high run of the tournament Planthaber has won six straight matches and it appears as though he's on his way to another championship. His nearest rival is Davie Brooks, last year's runner-up, who has won five out of six—that one loss to Planthaber. Jules Teller is third with four wins and three setbacks.

Following are the standings:

Won Lost H.R.
Planthaber	6 0 46
Brooks	5 1 41
Teller	4 3 38
Russell	3 2 30
Benoit	2 4 34

Gracious! Some Scorer!

Mild-Speaking Ken Griffith Beats Luisetti Mark On Fast Break

By DICK BOYD
AP Feature Service

Philippi, W. Va.—Ken Griffith misses a shot and exclaims: "Holy fright!"

His Alderson Broadus college teammates get a kick out of Ken's quaint exclamation but they don't hear it often.

Ken don't miss many shots. His "hits" have been so consistent, the record shows, that he holds a new all-time individual scoring mark for four years of college basketball.

The old record fell recently when Ken, a forward, counted 27 points against Salem. That was seven points more than necessary to tie the record of 1,596 set by Hank Luisetti of Stanford.

Kenny's mark was 1,603 points, with 11 games still on the Battler schedule—so the six-foot-two Griffith probably will far outdistance the California star.

Ken, a farm boy, made the Wellsburg, W. Va., high school team only in his senior year, but has been a regular at Alderson Broadus (enrollment 200), since his freshman days.

He scored 354, 380, and 575 points his first three years, and after the Salem game he had counted 294 points in 13 games this season. He scored 41 points in one game last year.

The Battlers use a fast break, placing Ken near the basket. Mark Dunham, with whom Ken played in high school, works as the fast break pivot man. He knows without looking where Ken will be, feeds him the ball, and bingo!

So well has Dunham carried out this role that he's known as "Mark the feeder." Mark is an accurate shot himself, third high in the team scoring to date.

Ken, a "B" average student, is a non-smoker, non-drinker and "holy fright" is his strongest expression. "He has only one fault," Dunham says seriously. "He's in love."

Champ Floors Challenger With Terrific Right to Chin; 15.902

See Knockout

Philadelphia, Feb. 18 (AP)—Those reports that Joe Louis is slipping are premature.

The heavyweight champion demonstrated he still is a "killer" by knocking out Philadelphia's Gus Dorazio with one punch—a terrific right cross that landed flush on the "button"—in 1:30 of the second round of their scheduled 15-round championship scrap at Convention Hall last night.

Philadelphia's largest indoor fight crowd—a total of 15,902 persons paid a gross of $57,552.62—saw Louis flatten Dorazio after Gus came out of a crouch and tried to land a left hook.

As Gus rushed in Louis stuck his own left smack into Dorazio's face, Gus, caught off balance, reeled back and for a second stood erect. For that brief second Louis had an opening and the Brown Bomber didn't miss.

He took one short step forward and let fly his lethal right. The punch didn't travel more than six inches, but it was enough. It landed right on Dorazio's chin and everyone knew the fight was over. Dorazio fell flat on his face completely senseless.

The challenger was "out" so completely that in his dressing room later he kept mumbling "they shouldn't have stopped it." He thought referee Irving Kutcher had intervened.

Dorazio made a fight of it during the first round. Bobbing and weaving, as he said he would, he landed a couple of blows to Louis' stomach and looked good on one occasion when Louis backed him into the ropes. His bobbing tactics made the champion miss several times and although Louis said later he had got in a "good up-percut" Dorazio weathered the storm apparently unhurt.

Between rounds Dorazio told his trainer, Jimmy Wilson, "why this guy isn't so tough. He's a sucker for a hook. I'm going out and stiffen him."

Wilson counseled: "Better stay down for a few rounds and see how things go."

"But when the bell rang," Wilson explained later, "When I saw Gus stand erect I knew it was the end."

It was Louis' 14th defense of the heavyweight laurels he won four years ago from Jimmy Braddock. He left for New York after the fight and intends to start training about March 1 for his next title bout against Abe Simon in Detroit on March 21.

Louis weighed 203½ pounds to 193½ for Dorazio.

Sacrificial Pacesetter

New York (AP)—New York track fans are certain that when four or five crack mile runners get together there probably won't be a very fast mile race. Because all of them want to win and none is willing to sacrifice himself as the pacesetter. This was brought out in the recent Milrose Games' Wanamaker mile when Fenske, Mehl, Munksi, MacMillan and Moore ran a slower first quarter and half mile than did the competitors a few events later in the two-mile run.

Gracious! Some Scorer!

Mild-Speaking Ken Griffith Beats Luisetti Mark On Fast Break

By DICK BOYD
AP Feature Service

Philippi, W. Va.—Ken Griffith misses a shot and exclaims: "Holy fright!"

His Alderson Broadus college teammates get a kick out of Ken's quaint exclamation but they don't hear it often.

Ken don't miss many shots. His "hits" have been so consistent, the record shows, that he holds a new all-time individual scoring mark for four years of college basketball.

The old record fell recently when Ken, a forward, counted 27 points against Salem. That was seven points more than necessary to tie the record of 1,596 set by Hank Luisetti of Stanford.

Kenny's mark was 1,603 points, with 11 games still on the Battler schedule—so the six-foot-two Griffith probably will far outdistance the California star.

Ken, a farm boy, made the Wellsburg, W. Va., high school team only in his senior year, but has been a regular at Alderson Broadus (enrollment 200), since his freshman days.

He scored 354, 380, and 575 points his first three years, and after the Salem game he had counted 294 points in 13 games this season. He scored 41 points in one game last year.

The Battlers use a fast break, placing Ken near the basket. Mark Dunham, with whom Ken played in high school, works as the fast break pivot man. He knows without looking where Ken will be, feeds him the ball, and bingo!

So well has Dunham carried out this role that he's known as "Mark the feeder." Mark is an accurate shot himself, third high in the team scoring to date.

Ken, a "B" average student, is a non-smoker, non-drinker and "holy fright" is his strongest expression. "He has only one fault," Dunham says seriously. "He's in love."

Coroner Gives Verdict on Roth

W. P. A. Employee Victim of Ruptured Heart and Crushed Chest

Eugene Roth, 60-year-old W. P. A. employee who was pinned between a partly loaded truck and a shale bank at West Hurley shortly before noon yesterday died instantly from a ruptured heart and crushed chest according to the verdict of Coroner Frank J. McCordie of Rosendale.

The coroner's certificate listed the death as accidental following an autopsy performed yesterday afternoon. Officers who investigated the accident indicated that the truck, which had been backed in toward the bank from which stone was being shoveled by the workmen, had been stopped near a spot of frozen dirt by the roadside. It gave way, probably under the pressure of the increasing load and Roth stood in the path of its skid toward the bank.

Those at the scene also said that a top section of the shale bank was frozen and Roth was pushed against a hard section of the bank as the heavy machine slid backward, despite the fact that it was in gear and the brakes were on.

Moore Was Driver

Roy Moore of Glenford, the driver of the truck, the officers said, was standing near the engine part of the truck at the time of the accident, but was unable to get near Mr. Roth or warn him in time to get clear of the truck as it moved back.

The driver drove the machine forward as soon as he saw what happened, but it was only to discover that the aged workman had been injured fatally.

Others in the group of workmen employed on what is known as the Stone Road immediately notified Joseph Wagner, foreman on the W. P. A. job, and Elmer Vente, town road superintendent. The latter notified Sheriff Molyneux, who took charge of the investigation assisted by Deputy Sheriffs Clayton Vredenburg, Herbert Segelken and Ray Winne.

An investigation was also made by W. P. A. officials from Kingston. In the course of the investigation the truck was positioned as it had been at the time of the accident and it slid back again toward the bank on the frozen section of ground.

The road on which the men were working joins route 28-A near the stage of Herbert Glass at West Hurley.

Mr. Roth is survived by his wife, Kathryn; one stepson, Gustav Franz, and three stepdaughters, Mrs. James Marsh, Mrs. Andrew Shaffer and Mrs. Nicholas Kreischer, all of Brooklyn.

Funeral services for Mr. Roth will be held in the funeral home of V. N. Lusher in Woodstock this evening at 7 o'clock. The Rev. Charles Devine of Ashokan will officiate and the body will be taken to Brooklyn for burial in the Lutheran Cemetery.

ARDONIA

Centerville Woman Taken to Local Hospital

An investigation continued today by state police of a hit-and-run accident on the Saugerties-Woodstock highway Sunday night in which Anna Casperson, aged Centerville woman, suffered a broken leg and other injuries. She was taken to the Benedictine Hospital where her condition was reported as "fair" this morning.

The woman knocked down on the highway was left lying in the road until she was discovered by the driver of another car which came by shortly after the accident.

An investigation started shortly after the accident by State Trooper Arthur Reilly of the B.C.I. and Sergeant E. J. Hulse and Trooper James Benson of Highland.

The driver of the car who saw the aged woman lying in the road, the officers said, did not identify himself. He notified the police at Saugerties who in turn had an ambulance sent to the scene.

At the time the woman was struck, the troopers said, she was on her way to visit a neighbor.

Liquor Dealers To Hold Dinner At Golden Rule

More than 300 members of the Ulster County Hotel and Restaurant Liquor Dealers Association, state officials, and law enforcement officials will pay tribute to William Reiss of Saugerties, retiring president of the local association, at its annual dinner dance to be held at the Golden Rule Inn tomorrow night.

Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux, District Attorney N. Le Van Haver, members of the Ulster County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, and Jack Kellihier, state organizer for the liquor dealers all will give short talks. William Fitzpatrick, head of the Ulster county liquor dealers for the present year, will give a short history and purpose of the organization.

Jack Feye, general chairman of the banquet, promises that the affair will be the most successful in the seven year history of the local association.

Loss of 500 Planes Was Big Factor In Italo Defeat

R. A. F. Tactics Smashed Craft on Ground, Hit Communications and Strafed Soldiers

(Edward Kennedy, Associated Press correspondent who here analyzes Britain's air tactics in the North African campaign, has covered the sweep against the Italians from Egypt across eastern Libya since it started Dec. 8.)

By EDWARD KENNEDY

With the British forces in Libya, Feb. 18 (AP)—Destruction of nearly 500 Italian airplanes on the ground stands out as one of the chief reasons for the success of Great Britain's Egyptian-Libyan campaign.

In the 600-mile advance from Matruh, Egypt, to the Tripolitanian frontier, the R. A. F. adopted tactics which proved so important to the success of the Germans in their conquests of the lowlands and France last year.

It smashed Italian communications, pounded strongholds like artillery, strafed retreating columns, spotted troop concentrations and patrolled the air over the British ground forces.

But just as important, if not more so, in the opinion of military observers, were operations against Italian airfields, where lie as evidence of the force of the British attacks a sizeable air armada reduced to junk before it could take to the air.

By actual count at one of Libya's nine leading airports—Benina—there were 100 wrecked planes. At El Adem, there were 87, at Berka, 40; and at each of three others, 22. The numbers ranged to as few as seven seaplanes destroyed at the seaplane base at Bomba.

The exponent of this "destroy 'em on the ground" method of aerial warfare is Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw of Vancouver, British Columbia, who commands the R. A. F. in the desert.

An ace in the World War, Collishaw was given the task of directing the desert air warfare.

"Collie," as his fliers call him, introduced a new weapon in his war against planes on the ground. He ordered his fliers to use a bomb originally intended almost exclusively for destruction of troops, rather than material.

Instead of the delayed fuse type designed to pock an airfield with craters and wreck hangars, Collishaw's men loaded up with bombs which exploded on impact and sprayed shrapnel radially a thousand yards from the explosion point.

Such missiles did little damage to the airport buildings or fields, but the sharp fragments of metal punctured fuselages, propellers and even motors.

The members of the Eighth Ward Republican Club will meet this evening at 7:45 o'clock at the home of Supervisor Henry Kelsch on West Pierpont street and from there will proceed in a body to the late home of William O'Neil, who had been an active member of the club.
